It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

PREFACE.

THE following address was prepared at the request of the Managers of the Pennsylvania Hospital. Believing that the institution might be benefitted by calling the attention of the community to its history and condition, and deeming the commencement of a new century in its existence a suitable opportunity for the purpose, the Managers resolved to have a public address delivered, and applied to the author, as the senior prescribing physician of the institution, to perform this duty. In complying with the request, the author felt an interest beyond that of mere official obligation. He knew that there were many points in the history of the Hospital, calculated to excite attention, at least in our community, which it was desirable to have recorded in a connected form for preservation and reference. He believed that the exact condition of the establishment was not generally known, and that impressions prevailed to some extent in relation to it, which might, if uncorrected, have the effect of materially limiting its usefulness. He was convinced that if its history and present condition were placed clearly and impartially before the public, advantage might accrue to the institution, and, through it to the general interests of charity. He, therefore, engaged in the work with zeal, and took much pains in the collection and arrangement of the materials; but, from the short space of time allotted, and from the pressure of other engagements, he cannot but fear that he has failed to do full justice to the subject. siderable portion of what has been said in the discourse is the result of his own personal knowledge; but he also derived materials largely from other sources, the most copious of which were the Minutes of the Board of Managers, from the beginning to the present time, which were kindly placed at his disposal for the purpose. In several of the financial points he was greatly aided by a manuscript prepared from the official records with great care by George Roberts Smith, Esq., late one of the Managers, and put by him into the possession of the Board. He consulted the unprinted official reports, the works of Dr. Franklin, and various other publications, among which may be particularized an early history of the Hospital, prepared at the request of the Board of Managers by Dr. Franklin, and an account of the institution drawn up by Mr. Wm. G. Malin, the present steward, and published in 1831. Some valuable facts and suggestions were also communicated by different officers of the Hospital. Whatever may be thought of the value of the facts contained in the address, or of the manner in which they have been stated, it is believed that reliance may be placed upon their accuracy; and the author cannot but hope that they may operate favourably upon the general sentiment of the community in relation to the institution.

ADDRESS.

WE have met to commemorate the establishment of the Pennsylvania Hospital, now at the beginning of the second century of its existence. It is good thus to recur at stated periods to the past. Especially is it good, in the advancing life of society, to recall those occasions when the fresher sensibilities of its youth impelled it to generous exertion and sacrifice, under the excitement of great social wants. The parent lives over again his own early life in that of his children, and feels the dispositions and faculties, which had begun to stiffen with age, warmed into renewed and vigorous Society, in like manner, looking upon the activity. offspring of its earlier years, feels a return of its more unselfish impulses, and is prompted to an increase of benevolent effort. The occasion then upon which we are met together is not one merely of gratification; it is an occasion also of beneficence, I might almost say, of duty.

It was towards the close of the year 1750, that the first step was taken towards the establishment of an Hospital in Philadelphia. The credit of originating the movement is due to Dr. Thomas Bond, at that time one of the most distinguished physicians of the city.

It is not improbable, however, that a want so obvious had occupied the thoughts of many reflecting persons, and that he who first brought it publicly forward was but the spokesman of a general sentiment, which had been gradually maturing in the community, and was now ripe for action.

Dr. Bond began by endeavouring to obtain subscriptions; and solicited the aid among others of his friend Benjamin Franklin, who, highly approving of the project, engaged heartily in furthering his views. Franklin first prepared the public mind by writing in the newspapers, and thus succeeded in increasing the number and amount of the subscriptions; but it was soon ascertained that the enterprise was beyond individual ability, and that legislative aid would be necessary to success. memorial, therefore, was addressed to the Provincial Assembly, setting forth the urgent necessity then existing for an Hospital, and asking for a charter to the contributors and for pecuniary assistance.* This was presented on the 23d of January, 1751. After some hesitation, especially on the part of the country members, a bill was finally passed, on the 7th of February, without a dissenting voice, incorporating "the Contributors to the Pennsylvania Hospital," and appropriating two thousand pounds, currency, towards the erection and furnishing of a building, to be paid when an equal amount should be subscribed by individuals to a permanent fund.*

* The private history of this transaction is somewhat curious. of the objections made by the members opposed to the measure was that the cost of medical attendance would alone be sufficient to consume all the money that could be raised. This was promptly met by an offer on the part of Dr. Lloyd Zachary, and of the two brothers Drs. Thomas and Phineas Bond, to attend the patients gratuitously for three years. But another and probably the real difficulty was, that the members from the country could not see clearly how the interests of their particular constituents would be promoted, and, thinking that the city was to be exclusively benefitted, concluded that the inhabitants of the city ought exclusively to bear the expense. Thus it appears that legislators in those times were not more far-seeing than in our own; and a little management was not less necessary then than now. Franklin's sagacity found a remedy for the difficulty. He told the opposition members that two thousand pounds could be raised by voluntary contribution. refused to believe, considering no doubt two thousand pounds a very great sum of money. Then he proposed that they should make their grant conditional upon the subscription of that sum by the citizens. They seized upon the idea, and, willing to gain the credit of charity without expense, no longer hesitated to vote for the bill. But Franklin had another object in view. Should the citizens be assured of an absolute legislative grant, they would be apt to be content with this vicarious charity of their representatives, and might be indisposed to subscribe. The conditional character of the grant was therefore a great stimulus to their benevolence; and the consequence was that a subscription which had before dragged along slowly was now quickly filled up. Dr. Franklin says, in his memoirs, that he remembers none of his political manœuvres which at the time gave him more pleasure, or in which, after thinking of it, he more easily excused himself for a little indirectness.

The Charter provided that it should be lawful for all who had contributed or might thereafter contribute ten pounds or more towards the Hospital, or any number of them, to meet on the first Monday of May, yearly, forever, to elect twelve Managers out of their own number, and a Treasurer, and to make rules for the government of the Institution, to be obligatory when approved by the Chief Justice, the Speaker of the Assembly, and the Attorney General. Further provisions of the Charter were, that the Contributors to the Pennsylvania Hospital might hold real estate of the yearly value of one thousand pounds; that neither they, nor any persons acting under them, should employ the money or other estate expressly given or added to the capital stock, in any other way than by applying its annual interest or rent towards the entertainment and care of the sick and distempered poor; and that patients should be received from any part of the Province without partiality or preference.

No sooner was this act published than its influence was felt in a great increase of the subscription list; and in a short time, considerably more than the amount required by the charter having been subscribed, a meeting of the contributors was held at the State House, and the first Board of Managers chosen. This Board consisted of Joshua Crosby, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Bond, Samuel Hazard, Richard Peters, Israel Pemberton, Jun., Samuel Rhodes, Hugh Roberts, Joseph Morris, John Smith, Evan Morgan, and Charles Norris. John Reynell was elected Treasurer. In the present audience there are, I presume, few to whom most of these names are not familiar, as belonging to men prominent in our general or local history, or as representative of families among the most respectable and oldest in our city, many of whose descendants are still flourishing in the midst of us, and some probably are now listening to this brief allusion to the praiseworthy efforts of their forefathers. May the satisfaction, which the recognition of the good works of those whose blood flows in their veins cannot but yield to all of proper sensibility, serve as an inducement to hand down, with the inheritance of their own blood, similar opportunities for self-congratulation; and may those who are less fortunate in the recorded deeds of their ancestors be stimulated by the example to furnish such a day as the present to their own descendants one hundred years hence! Beneficence in the head and founder of a family is like the vapours exhaled by a genial sun from a mountain lake, which, after giving support and beauty to surrounding nature, return at more or less distant points, in refreshing rains, to swell the streamlets that issue from its bosom.

Very soon after their election, the Managers transmitted to England, to Thomas and Richard Penn,* the Proprietaries of the Province, an address, narrating what had been done, and suggesting that, as the Assembly had granted a charter and a sum of money for the erection of a building, and the People had subscribed and were still subscribing largely towards a permanent fund, it might please the Proprietaries to grant a plot of ground on which to build; so that all concerned in the Province might participate in the honour, merit, and pleasure of so good a work. In a letter to Thomas Hvam and Sylvanus Bevan, the Managers bespoke their favourable intercession with the Proprietaries, and pointed out, as a suitable place for the building, the unappropriated portion of the Square on the South side of Mulberry between Ninth and Tenth Streets; being a part of the city in which the value of land had not increased for several years, and which was not likely to be soon occupied. In reply to this application, the Proprietaries sent out an elaborate Charter emanating from themselves, and an order to their Lieutenant Governor, James Hamilton, to convey to the corporation, in the same instrument, a lot of ground lying on the North side of Sassafras Street, between Sixth and Seventh Streets, being a portion of the grounds now known as the Franklin Square; under the condition, however, that, should there not be a constant succession of contributors, to meet and choose Managers, the tract of land thus conveyed should revert to them or their heirs.

But these grants did not meet the wishes of the Managers. The Charter was less liberal in its provisions than the one they had received from the Assembly, and could not be accepted without a failure in respect towards the Representatives who had so kindly complied with their requests. The provision in reference to the reversion of the lot was in itself an insurmountable objection; as there might in time be a failure in the regular succession of contributors, and they could not consent to the diversion, which would take place in such an event, of all the future buildings from the original purpose of the charity.* The ground which it was proposed to grant, being low and damp, in the neighbourhood of brick-ponds, and better adapted for a burying-place, for which in fact a portion of it was used, than for any other purpose, was not considered as offering a proper site for an Hospital; and, moreover, having been allotted with other adjoining grounds by the founder of the city for public uses, could not be accepted by the Managers, under the instrument conveying it, without an implied acknowledgment on their part of the Proprietaries' right to the remainder of the The Managers, therefore, unanimously felt themselves constrained to decline the grant of the Proprietaries; but were unwilling to surrender the hope of aid from them, and in another letter urged on them, through mutual friends, the plea of regard for their interest in the affections of the people, and the justice of their participation in measures calculated to promote the public good.

In the mean time, in order to carry the benevolent design of the subscribers into immediate effect, a private house,† situated on the south side of Market, west of Fifth Street, was hired as a temporary hospital; and

^{*} It is right to state that the Proprietaries disclaimed any wish to appropriate to themselves the buildings that might be erected, having merely had in view a restoration of the grounds, if they should cease to be applied to the purpose for which they were granted.

[†] This was the mansion of Judge John Kinsey, and with its grounds occupied nearly one-third of a square. The rent paid by the Managers yearly was forty pounds.

the Managers took measures, jointly with the contributors, to prepare for regular operations, by making rules in relation to the government of the Institution, the management of its pecuniary concerns, the appointment and duties of the physicians, and the admission of patients. The physicians and surgeons first appointed were Drs. Lloyd Zachary, Thomas and Phineas Bond, Thomas Cadwalader, Samuel Preston Moore, and John Redman. The temporary hospital was opened in February 1752, when two patients were received; and it continued to be occupied for about four years.

Despairing at length of the wished for donation from the Proprietaries, the Board determined to purchase a suitable lot, and, after patient and diligent investigation, bought, in December 1754, for five hundred pounds, the whole of the square on which the Hospital now stands, except a depth of sixty feet on Spruce Street, which, eight or ten years later, was granted by the Penns, together with an annuity of forty pounds. This lot was at that time far out of town, and was approached obliquely through the fields, the main streets not having been opened for use at so great a distance from the built parts of the city.

The next object was to erect a suitable building; and a plan was prepared calculated, with wise fore-thought, for a prosperous future; but so arranged that a part sufficient for immediate wants might be built at once, and additions afterwards made, as occasion might require, without disturbing the general symmetry. The plan was that of the present noble structure; the portion at the time intended for erection was the east wing as it now exists facing Eighth Street. The corner-stone was laid on the 28th of May, 1755, with the following neat inscription, prepared by Franklin:—

"In the year of CHRIST MDCCLV.,

GEORGE the Second happily Reigning (for he sought the happiness of his people),
Philadelphia Flourishing
(for its inhabitants were public spirited),
This Building,
By the Bounty of the Government,
And of many private persons,
Was piously founded
For the Relief of the Sick and Miserable.
May the God of Mercies Bless the undertaking."*

The house was so far completed in December 1756 that patients were admitted; and the first regular meeting of the Managers to inspect the wards took place on the 27th of that month.

The Hospital may now be considered as fairly under way. It will not be uninteresting to glance at the means by which, in a town containing less than 30,000 inhabitants, and as yet too young to have accumulated any considerable amount of capital, resources should have been found adequate to so important a result. The measure was extremely popular with all classes.

^{*} In the progress of the repairs now going on at the Hospital, it became necessary to dig an area in front of the east wing on Eighth Street; and, in doing so, the corner-stone alluded to was uncovered, and the inscription found perfect as given in the text. The stone is at the S. E. corner, and the face containing the inscription looks towards Eighth Street.

The original contributions already referred to as exceeding two thousand pounds, were in sums varying from one pound to two hundred and fifty; being, for the most part, from ten to thirty pounds.*

In running the eye over the list of subscribers, it is interesting to meet with so many names with which we are now familiar, showing that, though Philadelphia receives all strangers with a hearty welcome into her brotherhood, she holds on tenaciously to the families which have once taken root in her soil. It will be readily understood that the sum originally subscribed was but a mere beginning, sufficient to set the enterprise on foot, but altogether inadequate to its continued support. The Managers were not backward in letting the wants of the Institution be known; and their appeals were always answered. New contributions flowed in every year, sometimes abundantly. The "rich widows and other single women" called on specially by the Board in an emergency, showed by their response that benevolence in women is not an exclusive characteristic of our own times.† The celebrated Whitfield collected one hundred and seventy pounds for the Institution, at one of his sermons. Tradesmen, me-

^{*} The subscription of two hundred and fifty pounds was by Wm. Allen, Chief Justice of the Province.

[†] The subscription among the "rich widows and other single women" was set on foot with the object of raising money to pay for drugs which had been imported from London, and in the aggregate amounted to one hundred and fourteen pounds. Medicines were at first furnished gratuitously by the physicians of the Hospital; but this was felt to be an unreasonable burden, especially as they were giving their professional services without charge. It was, therefore, determined to hire an apothecary to chanics, and even common workmen deducted something from their prices or wages for the common Holders of real estate sold to the Hospital for less than they would have sold in an ordinary bargain. Jury fines, contested sums of money, and residuary unclaimed sums, in the hands of trustees and assignees, were deposited in its treasury. The signers of the paper money for the Province gave the wages they were allowed by law. The curious paid willingly the fee for admission to the Hospital; and many a poor person received the blessing of Heaven, as he dropped his mite into the charity box. At the suggestion of Franklin, twelve tin boxes were provided, marked with the words "Charity for the Hospital," in gold letters, one of which was kept in the house of each of the Mana-Though not very productive, they added something to the funds. The fact is curious, as marking a characteristic trait of our great philosopher, statesman, and economist. With a mind powerful enough to grasp the lightnings of heaven, and to control the fate of an empire, "eripuit cœlo fulmen sceptrumque tyrannis," he yet had the microscopic faculty of perceiving the atoms out of which all aggregates are made, and in pecuniary concerns did not scorn to take care of the pennies.*

attend daily at the house, and prepare the medicines; and an allowance of £15 per annum was made him for his trouble. It consequently became necessary to supply the Hospital with drugs, and at that time they could be obtained of a reliable character only from Europe.

* Among the benefactions worthy of notice was a lot of ground lying north of the city, presented by a German named Matthew Koplin, with

As may be readily imagined, legacies soon came to be a fruitful source of income. Within the first thirty years, considerably more than five thousand pounds were received, in sums varying from twenty to more than a thousand pounds. Nor was the interest excited by the Institution confined to the Province. tions were received from other Provinces, and from the West Indies; and large sums were contributed from the mother country, especially by members of the Society of Friends. It would be unpardonable to pass without notice the name of Dr. John Fothergill, of London, who was untiring in his good offices, not only subscribing largely of money, and making valuable donations of books, anatomical models, drawings, &c., but freely giving his advice and service when requested, and exerting his influence in England in various ways for the good of the Hospital.*

a letter in the language of his father land, stating that he desired to offer this gift to the Hospital because he thought it likely to be managed very differently from some in his own country, in which large sums collected as alms were appropriated by the governors of the charity to the enriching of themselves and their friends, who were thus enabled to live in superfluity and voluptuousness, keeping their horses and coaches like rich people, and all at the expense of the poor and the needy.

* The donation of Dr. Fothergill alluded to, consisted of eighteen different views of anatomical structure, in crayon and framed; of three cases of anatomical models, and of another case containing a skeleton, &c. These were of considerable value, being estimated in the schedule of the stock of the Hospital, at £350. They must have been of much service to the student in the dearth of opportunities for anatomical demonstration, and appear to have excited some curiosity in the community, as they were placed in a room by themselves, and a dollar was demanded

Among the important results of the interest felt in England was the receipt of a large sum of money, consequent upon the settlement of the concerns of a jointstock partnership, denominated the Pennsylvania Land Company in London. In the year 1760 an Act of Parliament was passed, vesting in trustees the estates of that company in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland, in order that they might be sold, and the proceeds distributed. But, as it appeared probable that for a considerable portion of these proceeds no just claimant would be found, the insertion of a clause in the Act was procured by the friends of the Hospital, granting to that Institution all the money which might remain unclaimed in the hands of the trustees upon the 24th of June 1770. Thomas Hyam appears to have been chiefly instrumental in bringing about this important event for the Hospital; and the counsel and aid of Dr. Fothergill and David Barclay, in connection with Dr. Franklin, then in England, were very usefully resorted to in the ultimate settlement of the business. thirteen thousand pounds, or about thirty-four thousand dollars accrued ultimately to the Institution from this from every visitor, for permission to inspect them. They arrived in August 1762, about the time of the return of Dr. Shippen from Europe, and were made use of by him, with the permission of the Board, for the illustration of a course of lectures on anatomy, which he delivered the following winter. But a pistole from each student attending the lectures was demanded for the privilege. In the following summer, Dr. Shippen volunteered to attend at the Hospital every other Saturday at 5 P. M., to explain the paintings, &c., to those who might attend, on the payment of a dollar to the Hospital.

source, though the last portions of the sum were not received until after the close of the Revolutionary War.

A simple reference to a further grant of three thousand pounds, made by the Provincial Assembly in the year 1762, will close our account of the fiscal concerns of the Hospital anterior to the Revolution.

Purchases were made at different times, on reasonable terms, and for sums which would now seem extremely small, of the square of ground lying East, and of the half square lying West of the proper Hospital lot. In April, 1776, according to a statement entered on the Minutes of the Board of Managers, the whole capital stock, independently of the buildings and the lot upon which they stood, estimating the real estate at cost, was somewhat over twenty-one thousand pounds, or about fifty-six thousand dollars; and the annual income from the productive capital was thirteen hundred and eighteen pounds, or about three thousand five hundred dollars.

It would give me great pleasure, were time allowed, to refer to the various individuals who were most active in the early concerns of the Hospital, and most liberal in its support; to speak, in addition to those already mentioned, of the Jones's, the Griffitts's, the Foxes, the Roberdeaus, the Greenleafs, the Richardsons, the Mifflins, the Lewis's, the Whartons, the Morris's, the Logans, and others who acted as Managers in the Provincial times; of the Shippens, the Evans's, the Morgans, the Moores, who served as Physicians and Surgeons; of the Allens, the Crosbys, the Dennys, the Emlens, the Hamiltons, the Norris's, the Neates, the Osbornes, the Pembertons, who, during the first ten years, contributed most largely to its funds. But I must forego the satisfaction of further personal details. Where a whole community participates, it is impossible to name all; and it is highly probable that, were the attempt made to ascribe his due merits to each individual concerned, great injustice at this distance of time might be done to the modest worth, which no doubt then, as now and always, sought rather to conceal than to blazon forth its good deeds.*

It was undoubtedly a sense of the benefits it conferred which rendered the Hospital so popular. The insane, instead of wandering through town and country, to their own and the public injury, an offence frequently and terror to the community, or of languishing in confinement, perhaps in chains, with little sympathy and less restorative aid, were now comfortably accommodated, often restored to health by judicious management, and, if incurable, were restrained from doing harm to themselves or their families, whether in person or estate. The poor and houseless stranger, overtaken by sickness, or perhaps seeking relief for his infirmities from metropolitan skill, was no longer left to precarious individual

^{*} In addition to what has been said of Franklin's services to the Hospital, it is proper to mention that he continued to take an active share in its concerns until he went abroad; was the first Secretary of the Board of Managers and its second President; wrote, by the request of the Board, for publication, an historical sketch of the Institution, and in other ways employed his very efficient pen in its service; and, finally, during his official residence in London, continued to give attention to its pecuniary interests.

charity, or, failing in this, to perish in the streets. sick tenant of the cellar or the garret, without fuel in winter, and ill provided at any season with food, medicine, and advice, had now a refuge to shelter and save him. The victims of sudden accident, with broken limb or bleeding wound, instead of being left to the mercies of chance, maimed perhaps for life, or perishing from want of suitable aid, had now ready access to the best skill, and all the necessary appliances to obviate the evil, so far as this could be effected by human agency. In fact, the beggar in the street, in reference to his restoration to health when diseased, was elevated to the condition almost of the prince in his palace. They who had witnessed the previous evil, and now beheld the operation of the remedy, blessed in their hearts the instrument of so much good, and freely gave of their substance for its support. But we are now accustomed to hospitals, and have little experience of the general evils they have abated. We have come to look on them as matters of course; our feelings have cooled into indifference; and there may be some danger that, as extremes are said to meet, we shall find ourselves, in the advanced stages of social progress, not far from the point at which we started.

The number of patients admitted annually into the Hospital increased gradually from 53, in the second year of its operations, to 153 in the year 1760-61, 382 in 1770-71, and 435 in the year preceding the declaration of independence; the average proportion of pay-patients throughout this period being only a little more than one-sixth. The average numbers in the Hospital at the same time, in the years mentioned, were respectively 17, 45, 117, and 89, the last number indicating some falling off consequent upon the revolutionary troubles.

But, strange as the opinion may sound to most of the audience, I have no hesitation in saying that the cure of the sick is but a small part, relatively, of the good that is done by a well-regulated hospital. The opportunities which it affords to the medical student of acquiring a practical acquaintance with disease, contribute much more largely to the general benefit. It is universally admitted that the young practitioner, who has sought instruction by the bed-side in institutions of this kind, is far better qualified for the duties of his profession, than if he had enjoyed no such advantage. community which affords such opportunities to those who are to have the future charge of its health, will reap the incalculable reward of a wiser supervision and more efficient management of all that concerns that inestimable blessing. This, then, is one of the charities that benefits, even in a worldly sense, as well the giver as the immediate recipient. But the good extends far beyond the community in which the hospital is situated. Young men from a distance are attracted by its proffered advantages, and carry home with them, each to his own neighbourhood, a portion of the knowledge and skill which he has seen exhibited. For every patient cured, or well treated, in an hospital, hundreds, perhaps, in the course of time, thousands, scattered through wide regions of town and country, may experience similar benefit. How the managers of institutions of this kind can reconcile to their moral sense the closure of this broad avenue to good, I find it difficult to understand. Assuredly this charge cannot be made against the Pennsylvania Hospital. Clinical instruction has ever been a prominent part in its scheme. Born with it in this country, it has grown with its growth, and, if I cannot exactly say is mature with its maturity, is probably as far advanced as circumstances will at present allow. Students were at a very early period admitted to the practice of the house, at first upon the payment of a fee of five pistoles, or about eight pounds currency, which was afterwards reduced to five pounds, and still later to ten dollars, at which it now stands. So early as 1766, Dr. Thos. Bond proposed to deliver a course of clinical lectures to the students, and, the proposition being approved by the Managers, commenced in November with an Introductory Lecture, which was so highly thought of by the Board, that it was copied into their minute book. From that time to the present, clinical lectures have been given more or less regularly in the Hospital, either in the form of remarks by the bed-side as the students were conducted through the wards, or, when they have been too numerous, as of late, to be thus conducted, by regular lectures in the amphitheatre, to which the patients were conveyed. By these means the Hospital has long been a fountain from which streams of sanitary influence have poured forth through all parts of this far-extending land, spreading everywhere, along with its practical benefits, the reputation of this time-honored Institution.

Another interesting event in the early history of the Hospital was the establishment of the medical library, at present one of its greatest boasts. This event followed directly from the system of clinical instruction. Managers having referred to the Physicians and Surgeons for consideration the subject of fees from medical students attending the Hospital, the latter met in May 1763, and, after a conference upon the subject, agreed to propose that a fee should be demanded from every attending student, not an apprentice of one of the Medical officers of the Hospital. As such fees were in European hospitals considered as a perquisite of the physicians and surgeons, they were of opinion that to them properly belonged the appropriation of the money thus received; and they proposed, accordingly, that it should be applied to the establishment of a medical library. This appropriation was virtually agreed to by the Board; and thus began that splendid collection of medical books. unequalled probably on this continent, and surpassed by few libraries exclusively medical in the world.

The internal business of the house was superintended by a Steward and Matron; and the direct care of the patients, under the physicians, was intrusted to students or apprentices, living within the Institution, who were supposed to derive from the experience acquired a full compensation for their services. At this stage of the history of the Hospital, the duties also of the apothecary devolved on these young men; for, though professed apothecaries were occasionally engaged for a salary, and one or more were brought for the purpose from England, the plan was abandoned after the system of apprenticed students came fairly into operation.

In relation to the patients, the rule was to admit as many on the poor list as the funds at the command of the Managers would support, refusing those only afflicted with incurable or contagious diseases. remaining space, after these were accommodated, was appropriated to the reception of patients who could afford to make some compensation; and, as the price demanded was much less than they would have had to pay out of the house, scarcely exceeding the absolute cost to the Institution, and whatever profits accrued went to the further extension of aid to the destitute, it follows that the charity of the Hospital was more widely diffused than if it had admitted only paupers. As to the insane, the same rules were not rigidly followed. The incurable of this class were admitted even upon the poor list; and from the richer patients, whose friends gladly availed themselves of the benefits of the establishment, a higher board was demanded; so that in fact this department became a source of profit, and aided in the support of the general charity.

Such were the regulations and such the condition of the Hospital at the breaking out of the Revolutionary War. It had been established on a firm foundation, had matured its arrangements by an experience of many years, and was in a condition to expand with the growing means of the Province, and the accumulation of material for its beneficent operation. It had passed its period of development, had escaped the dangers of infancy, and was in a vigorous youth, with every promise of a noble maturity.

But it was now to stand a severe trial of its stability.

A storm had been long gathering in the political atmosphere of the Provinces, which broke out at length into the fury of civil and revolutionary war. It swept over the whole land. Social habits and relations, with their beautiful verdure and bloom, were crushed to earth beneath the blast, or torn, and scattered by its violence; the arts and business of life, the noble erections of skill and industry, tottered upon their foundation, and stood roofless in the storm; the deepest rooted institutions of science and benevolence were uptorn or broken, and the fragments of their tempest-tossed limbs strewn over the country. When the rage of contest had ceased, and peace again shone out upon the land, the people, recovering from their stupefaction, began to look around them, to examine what had escaped destruction, to gather up the scattered fragments of their institutions, and to restore the beauty and beneficence of order to society once more.

What at this time was the state of our Institution? It had not come unscathed out of the tempest. In the excess of party bitterness, four of its most efficient Managers were banished to the wilds of Western Virginia. The British Army, upon entering Philadelphia, took possession of its wards, appropriating the bedding, medicines, instruments, &c., to their own uses; and, though the building was restored by them to the Managers, the mischief done was not repaired, and no compensation made for the losses inflicted. But vastly worse than either of these evils was the conduct of many debtors of the Institution, who took advantage of the law enforcing the receipt of paper money, to discharge their mortgages and other obligations in a depreciated cur-While the capital was thus diminished, the income from the remainder, often paid in the same worthless paper, shrunk almost to nothing; and, as contributions came in no longer, and the increased cost of living necessarily augmented the expenses, it may be readily understood that the Hospital was greatly crippled in its means of doing good. On one occasion, it became necessary to beg the loan of a little specie to prevent its operations from being wholly suspended. It is true that, upon a representation being made to the Legislature of the condition of the charity, an act was passed granting the apparently munificent sum of ten thousand pounds; but such was the state of the currency at the time, March 1780, that the value of the grant was estimated at the precise sum of one hundred and sixty-three pounds, eighteen shillings and eight pence; but little more than enough to pay the salary of the steward and matron. From a statement published by the Board in the autumn of 1785, it appears that the loss of productive capital, consequent on the revolutionary troubles, amounted to upwards of eight thousand pounds,* and that its expenses at that time, though very greatly reduced, doubled its fixed income. the year 1788-89, such was its inefficiency that only seventy-seven patients were admitted into the house during the whole year, of whom not more than twentyeight were on the charity-list; and the average number in the house at one time was forty-seven, consisting chiefly, in all probability, of incurable lunatics.

^{*} Precisely £8,259 17s. 1d.

An appeal to the community was published; and a committee, of which Mr. Coates was chairman, was appointed to solicit subscriptions personally from the citizens. A considerable sum was thus raised; renewed interest and pride in the Institution were excited; and legacies with various contributions again flowed into its coffers. The Managers exerted themselves in every way; delinquent debtors were called to account; suspended annuities and subscriptions were claimed; legacies which had escaped notice were looked after and recovered; disputed claims were brought to a legal settlement; and, while in this species of beneficent foraging, no visible blade of grass was left ungathered, a watchful care was exercised over the consumption within, which allowed nothing to be wasted.

One windfall is worthy of special notice. Two hundred pounds were sent to the Board by an individual, as an indemnity for injury inflicted on the Hospital by the former payment of a mortgage in depreciated funds. It appears, however, that conscience in this case had been negotiating with self-interest, and, as so frequently happens, had the worst of the bargain. A committee of the Managers replied, that they were free to acknowledge that this was the first instance in which the least compensation had been offered for the great injury and injustice done to the poor, by the payment of money, borrowed equal in value to specie, in a currency known at the time to be so worthless. This, they said, however, was warranted by the law, upon which they were disposed to make no comment at all, leaving every man to reconcile his conduct to the law written in his heart. The present payment, they thought, was dictated upon a good ground; and they could not doubt that something further would spring from the same source, until the whole should be settled on the true principle of right; and, in order that this end might be attained, they sent a statement of the account, showing how much was yet wanting to make up the great loss.

In consideration of the fact that legacies from persons at a distance had, in repeated instances, long remained unknown to the Board, and of course unpaid, the Managers applied in 1790 to the Legislature for a law rendering it obligatory on the registers of wills, in the different counties, to give notice of such legacies to charitable institutions. Whether any legislative action ensued I have not learned.

In January 1792, a new application was made to the Legislature for assistance. In a joint memorial from the Managers, Treasurer, and Physicians, after a brief historical sketch of the Institution from its foundation, showing how much it had in former times been favoured by the Assembly, its present wants were set forth in an impressive manner, especially the want of space for the accommodation of the increasing number of lunatics, who were now injuriously crowded, and, by filling the wards, excluded the due proportion of other cases from the house. What was now especially wished from the Legislature was an appropriation for completing the Hospital buildings according to the original plan; as, if this were accomplished, it was thought that the increasing interest taken in the Institution would insure the supply of means for its support through voluntary con-The result of this application, supported as tributions. it appears to have been by the public sentiment, was an act of Assembly granting to the Hospital the sum of ten thousand pounds out of the arrears due to the commonwealth under the loan office act; and, in addition, the unclaimed dividends of bankrupts' estates, which yielded, in the end, nineteen thousand dollars. ther grant of twenty-five thousand dollars was made in April 1796; so that the Hospital received altogether, on these occasions, through legislative action, a sum, applicable to the erection of buildings, somewhat exceeding seventy thousand dollars.

At a meeting of the Contributors early in 1794, it was determined to proceed at once with the building. The aim was to provide accommodations as soon as possible for the insane; and the western wing, with the wards connecting it with the central portion, was first undertaken. This was so far completed as to be opened for the reception of patients in 1796. In consequence of the great rise in the price of materials, and the slow incoming of portions of the legislative grant, the progress with the remainder of the house was less rapid than had been anticipated; and it was not till the year 1805 that the central portion was finished, and the original plan carried into full effect. It is scarcely necessary to allude to the several outbuildings which were at different periods suggested by the increasing wants of the Hospital, and erected out of its increasing means. From a representation made by the Board to the Legislature, it appears that the sums specifically granted for the building had been insufficient to meet the cost; and a further grant was requested: but the bounty of the Assembly had been exhausted; and from that period the Hospital has received no pecuniary aid from the State government.

In looking over the minutes of the Board of Managers, I have found numerous records of incident, which, did time permit, might be referred to with interest on the present occasion, as in themselves curious, as bearing more or less directly upon the history of the Institution, or as illustrative of the local history of the times. I will refer briefly to a few of them.

It is generally known that the wife of Stephen Girard, whose name has now become inseparably connected with our city, was for a long time among the unfortunate inmates of the insane department of the Hospital; but it is not so generally known that a child was born to him within its precincts in May, 1791, by the death of which probably the orphans of Philadelphia became his heirs. Mr. Girard was always a friend of the Hospital, and repeated pecuniary contributions received from him are noticed on its records.

The yellow fever, which committed such havoc in our city in 1793, and for many years afterwards continued to make occasional inroads in the summer and autumn, seems always to have been an object of great dread at the Hospital. The Managers, as most others in those times, were decided contagionists, and were under constant apprehension lest the disease might be propagated in the house. They have placed on record a strong letter of remonstrance written by them to Dr. Wm. Shippen, one of the physicians, in June 1801, on the occasion of the inadvertent admission into the Hospital of a patient, who turned out to be affected with the fever. In the summer of 1797, while the building was going on, their carpenter, David Evans, applied for permission to board in the house, as the vellow fever was prevailing in the vicinity of his residence. was granted on the condition that he should hold no communication with the city; the Hospital being then considered, as appears, quite out of town. nagers seem to have taken some credit to themselves for keeping their patients free from the disease; for though, with all their caution, a case would now and then appear within their walls, yet the immediate isolation to which it was subjected, was supposed to have prevented the spreading of the fever. It seems not to have occurred to them that this exemption was in fact owing to the non-contagiousness of the disease, now almost universally admitted in this country, and to the fact that their rural situation placed them beyond the influence of that vitiated atmosphere upon which it depended. It was in the epidemic of 1793 that Dr. James Hutchinson fell a victim to the yellow fever. The Managers, thinking it due to his memory to record their sense of his great services to the Institution, speak of him in their minutes as "an able and eminent physician," who had spent many of his youthful days as resident apothecary in the house, had afterwards served most acceptably as a surgeon for fourteen years, and was known, with others, to have effectually advocated the interests of the Hospital with the Assembly and people, on all occasions, whereby many additional grants and donations had been secured.

In 1799, a proposition was made to the Board by George Latimer, the Collector of the Port of Philadelphia, to receive as inmates of the Hospital the sick and disabled seamen, both of the public and private service, for a suitable compensation to be paid by the government of the United States. This proposition led finally to the present arrangement, by which the seamen of the merchant service, entitled, in consideration of the hospital money deducted from their wages, to be cared for when disabled by disease, are received into the house for a certain stipulated weekly board, and retained until restored to health, or removed by the Collector.*

* I find on the minutes for December 28th, 1801, an incident worthy of record, showing an early movement on the subject of temperance in this city. It was the presentation to the Court of Quarter Sessions and Mayor's Court of Philadelphia, of a joint memorial from the Guardians of the Poor, the Inspectors of the City and County Prison, and the Managers of the Hospital, stating their alarm at the increase of the number of the objects of their care, attributable, they believed, mainly to intemperance, and offering their earnest entreaties that the number of taverns and other licensed public houses in the city might be reduced.

In December 1802, a proposition was made to extend the usefulness of the Institution by the establishment of a lying-in department for poor and deserving married women. This was approved by the Contributors on the following January, and the department went into operation accordingly. In connexion with this subject may be appropriately mentioned the donation, by the First Troop of Philadelphia Cavalry, of a sum derived from their pay for services in the revolutionary war, which had been set aside for the establishment of a foundling hospital, but happily received a much more profitable direction to this particular charity. The arrangement to this effect was completed in March 1807. The contribution consisted of shares in the capital stock of the Pennsylvania Bank, and for many years furnished an annual income for the support of the lying-in ward of between five hundred and six hundred dollars.*

From an early period of the history of the Institution, it had been the custom to attend to poor patients out of the house, as well as to those admitted. This duty was, I believe, mainly performed by the young men who were from time to time engaged as resident students, or apprentices as they were called. There was, however, little system in this department of the service until December 1807, when a regular Dispensary for out-door patients was established, and physicians were appointed to attend them at a small salary. Two or three physicians successively received appointments under this arrangement; but, as the Philadelphia Dispensary, which had the same objects in view, had now come into efficient operation, it was not deemed worth while to persevere; and the whole system was abandoned in January 1817.

The history of the celebrated painting of Christ healing the sick is not unworthy of notice. In September 1800, the Managers wrote to Benjamin West, soliciting a contribution from his pencil. They said in their letter that the hospital building, than which none in this part of the world united in itself more of ornament and use, was then nearly completed, and, after a due compliment to the liberality of English contributors, and an appeal to the affection which he could not but feel for the place of his birth, concluded with the sentiment, that the works of an artist which ornamented the palace of his king, could not fail to honour him in his native land. This request received in the following year a favourable answer from West, who suggested as the subject of the painting the text of Scripture, "And the blind and the lame came to Him in the temple, and He healed them," than which certainly none could be more appropriate. In August, 1810, notice was received that the painting might be soon looked for; and expectation was on tip-toe not only among those especially interested in the Hospital, but in the whole community: but for the present it was destined to disappointment. The picture, when exhibited in England, excited such a glow of admiration, that English patriotism took the alarm, and nobles and commons, rich and poor, united in the determination to retain it in the country. West could not resist the various influences exerted, and was prevailed on to allow the painting to remain; but he immediately engaged in the preparation of a copy, which he resolved should exceed the original. Considering that he was occupied in this work at a time when the two countries were at war, and considering also his connexion with the Great of his adopted country, we may fairly ascribe to him the merit of extraordinary independence and liberality of feeling, as well as of attachment to the place of his birth. It was not, however, until October, 1817, that the painting reached this country. It was immediately placed in a building which had been specially erected for its reception upon the hospital lot on Spruce Street, and, having been opened for exhibition, at the price of 25 cents for admission, attracted a throng of visitors, which yielded for several years a considerable income to the Institution. The money received from the opening of the exhibition to the present time has been somewhat more than twenty-five thousand dollars; and, as the whole outlay on account of the picture was not equal to ten thousand dollars, the profit, deducting the cost of exhibition, amounts to about fifteen thousand dollars; no inconsiderable contribution from our countryman, especially as it proceeded not from an overflowing purse, but immediately from the work of his own head and hands.*

^{*} At the request of the Managers of the Academy of Fine Arts, the Board has permitted this painting to be removed to that institution, with the understanding that it shall be returned when demanded; and as it

A subject of much interest about this period attracted the attention and solicitude of the Managers. From its foundation up to the year 1808, the thought seems to have occurred to no one of taxing the property of the Hospital. To the simplicity of those times it was so obvious that such a proceeding would be merely taking money out of one pocket to put into another, that it was not considered worth while to incur at once the odium, trouble, and cost of the process. It was well understood that, if the Hospital did not take care of the destitute sick, the charge would necessarily fall on the public; and, as it is notorious that the concerns of this same public are carried on at greater cost than similar concerns in private hands, it seemed to our plain ancestors that money extracted from the charity-box of the Hospital would not only cost more than it would come to, but at the same time be less effective in its application; that is, the poor would cost more and be worse But we have learned a new lesson in modern cared for. There is another class to be provided for at the public expense besides the poor. It is the class that has the management of our public concerns. money is collected, and the more distributed, the better for these; and as they are prominently the patriots of the day, they of course deserve support, even at the expense of that less profitable class, the destitute poor. Hence, it is now a favourite theory with many that our charities should be taxed with everything else. It appears that in 1808 the property of the Hospital was The Board of Managers assessed for the first time. appealed to the Legislature, then sitting in Lancaster (January, 1809); petitioning for an act exempting their property from taxation; but were unsuccessful. They hereupon determined to decline payment, and to appeal to the law; having, in the absence of any special enactment, long usage in their favour. In June, the collector sent in a bill of three hundred and eighty-one dollars, seventeen cents, for city, county, poor, and health taxes; and not receiving payment, seized on the hav and the cows which he found in one of the lots. These were bought in on account of the Board, who then instituted a suit for trespass. The cause was protracted till 1812, when it was lost; and nothing now remained for the Managers but submission to the burthen, or another appeal to the law-making power. They preferred the latter, but again failed; nor did they meet with better success in another attempt made towards the close of the year 1814. They did not, however, despair. In their next essay they were wise enough not to place their dependence on the merits of their cause alone; but to act also on the political sensibilities of the law-makers. by giving to their application a broad popular basis. A memorial was prepared and circulated among the citizens for their signature. With this they presented themselves once more at the door of legislation, backed this time not merely by reason, common sense, humanity, charity, and the various other common-place homely influences of the same kind, but also by the potential voice of many voters, much more easily heard, amid the din of politics, than the still small voice within. Whether the result was due to their policy or to their perseverance, certain it is that the decision was at length in their favour; and, by a clause apparently smuggled into the close of another act having reference to the far-off city of New Orleans, as if the legislators were really ashamed of this lapse into the weakness of charity, the Pennsylvania Hospital and the grounds around it were declared to be exempt from taxation so long as they should be employed for charitable purposes. It is proper to say that a subsequent Assembly extended this exemption (March 19th, 1845) to the whole estate, real and personal, belonging to the Institution.

Alluding as we have done so often to benefactions conferred upon the Hospital, it is no more than just that we should mention an occasion in which the Hospital itself The liberal present made by Dr. Fotherwas the giver. gill of various anatomical drawings and models to the Institution, has been already referred to. These served as the basis of a Museum, which was afterwards greatly increased (April, 1793) by the purchase from the executors of Dr. Chovet, an eminent, but somewhat eccentric physician of Philadelphia, of his collection of preparations and wax models, then deemed master-pieces of art in that department. The museum thus created was considered at one time among the greatest attractions of the Hospital, and even added somewhat to its receipts. But losing at last its value in this respect, and occupying space which was wanted for the more important purposes of the Institution, the Managers very courteously made an offer of it to the University of Pennsylvania, where it might be employed to greater practical advantage. The purchased cabinet of Dr. Chovet was made an absolute gift; but the collection presented by Dr. Fothergill, as the Managers did not conceive that they had the authority to alienate it, was merely placed with the University on deposit. The transfer was made in April, 1824, and the two collections at this time form a part of the Wistar Museum in the University.

An improvement of considerable importance was about the same time made in the internal medical arrangements of the Hospital. Originally, a single student or apprentice. bound to serve the Institution for five years, was deemed adequate to the duties not only of attending to the sick, but also of putting up the prescriptions of the physicians. An additional apprentice was afterwards found necessary; and, by a very proper arrangement, to the older and more experienced were assigned the more responsible duties, while the younger took those which required less knowledge and skill. But with the rapidly extending business of the house, it became essential to obtain further aid; and it was resolved, June, 1821, that a regular apothecary should be engaged at a salary, to reside in the house, and take upon himself all the strictly pharmaceutical offices. At the same time, instead of students or apprentices, it was determined that graduates in medicine should be employed, who having already gone through a regular course of education, would not only be more competent to the duties of the station, but would also be able to devote their time more exclusively to these duties. Thus the two students were replaced by two resident physicians; and the number of these has recently been increased to three. The experience and skill they gain during their period of service are deemed an ample compensation; and they receive only their board while in the house. The station is eagerly sought for by the best educated among our young graduates.

From the period of greatest depression, about the close of the revolutionary war, the pecuniary concerns of the Hospital rapidly improved, under the unceasing activity of the Managers, and the smiles of popular favour. liberal legislative grant has been mentioned. vidual contributions were numerous, and in the aggregate of large amount. Among the most considerable was one of thirteen hundred dollars presented through Samuel Coates by a person who was unwilling that his name should be known. The interest felt for the Institution in Great Britain before the Revolution still continued in some degree, as evinced by donations and pecuniary contributions from Dr. Lettsom, William Dillwyn, and Robert Barclay. Various gifts were made of little pecuniary value, but highly acceptable from the associations attached to them. A marble bust of Wm. Penn, supposed to be the first executed in this country, was presented by James Traquair, in June, 1802; and the leaden statue of the same great man which has long stood in front of the Hospital, was received as a gift from his grandson, John Penn, in September, 1804.*

^{*} In addition to these donations may be mentioned, as falling within this period of the history of the Hospital, the gift by Henry S. Drinker

The legacies were also numerous. Among them may be particularized, as of greatest amount, those of Dr. Samuel Cooper, who left the greater part of his estate for the support of a carriage and horses for the use of the Hospital; of William West, amounting to upwards of two thousand dollars; of Charles Nicholes, exceeding five thousand dollars; of Paul Siemen, two thousand dollars; of John Keble, who, besides a considerable amount of real estate, left money and securities equivalent to not less than fifteen thousand dollars, which were received in July 1809;* and, lastly, of Stephen Girard, of the arm chair of William Penn, which is said to have been used by him on the occasion of his audiences with the Indians who visited him at Pennsbury Manor, and which had remained in the mansion house at that place from 1683 to 1795. It was presented by Mr. Drinker, May 7th, 1810.

In September, 1831, a marble bust of Benjamin West, executed by Chantry, was presented on the part of Major Gibbons, of Richmond, Virginia, and was placed in the room occupied by the celebrated painting of West.

The portrait of Dr. Rush, which adorns the hall of the centre building at the Hospital, was painted after a family picture, by Thomas Sully, at the suggestion of the medical students, made in a letter to the Board, May 31st, 1813, and at the expense of the fund derived from the fees of the students, under a resolution of the physicians and surgeons.

About the same time, the full length portrait of Samuel Coates, the efficient Manager of the Institution, which also adorns the hall, was painted by Mr. Sully, and presented by him to the Institution.

* By the will of Mr. Keble, eight hundred dollars were specifically left the Hospital, and the residue to be distributed by Bishop White and others, executors or trustees, for such charitable purposes as they might deem best. The share which accrued to the Hospital was estimated to have amounted altogether to the sum of $28,242, from which a small annuity was to be deducted. (Minutes, vol. ix. page 172.)

whose legacy, amounting to twenty-nine thousand two hundred and fifty dollars, after the deduction of the collateral inheritance tax, came into the treasury of the Hospital in July, 1832.

The productive capital, which, at the lowest period of its depression in 1783, was in round numbers twentyseven thousand dollars, gradually increased in the several decades after that year, to forty-five thousand in 1793, sixty-two thousand in 1803, one hundred and twenty-four thousand in 1813, one hundred and seventytwo thousand in 1823, and two hundred and sixty thousand in 1833, after which a new era in the history of the Hospital begins. The income from capital, during about an equal period, rose by corresponding gradations from one thousand dollars, its lowest point in 1796, to nearly fifteen thousand in 1835. operations of the charity of course corresponded with the means; and the number of annual admissions increased from 78 in 1790, to 176 in 1800, 368 in 1810, 749 in 1820, and to 1130 in 1830, after which the average for several years was somewhat over 1000. The number in the house at one time, or, to use a technical phraseology, its average population, rose from The proportion of pay patients was, during 46 to 225. this second period in the history of the Institution, much greater than in the ante-revolutionary period, owing to the admission of the seamen of the merchants' service, and the increased numbers of the insane, whom the reputation of the Hospital attracted from all parts of the Union. It was necessary to regulate the number of poor admitted by the state of the funds, and from time to time the former was augmented by resolution of the Board with the increase of the latter. Thus in 1807, 50 beds were allowed for poor patients, in 1823, 90, and in 1835, 120.

Reference has already been made to the purchase of the two lots east and west of the Hospital. At various periods the Managers were enabled to possess themselves also of one upon the south-west, and another opposite to the Hospital on the south; so that, with their buildings all completed, and surrounded on every side except on the north, with beautiful green fields, kept in the nicest order, they could boast an Institution, if not the largest, assuredly in all points of beauty, healthfulness, and general prosperity, unsurpassed upon this continent.

A new era now begins in the history of the Hospital. A great question agitated the minds of the Board, the contributors, and the thinking men of the general com-This question had reference to the insane. munity. Their numbers had increased beyond the means of accommodation. New views in relation to the treatment of this class of patients had been developed which could not be carried out in the existing space and arrangements of the house. The Pennsylvania Hospital, which had taken an acknowledged lead in this branch of practical medicine, was falling behind other establishments. They who had the immediate charge of the insane, and I happened to be one of them, felt themselves cramped in their curative efforts, and, seeing their way clearly to better things, were troubled and grieved at the intervening obstacles. There was no opportunity for proper classification, none for bringing duly to bear the vast remedial power of moral influences. It is true that in our Institution, under the enlightened supervision of Rush and others, correct views of insanity and of its management had prevailed and been carried into partial effect, at a very early period, and had undoubtedly been one cause of its wide reputation and popularity. But in the march which we ourselves had been among the first to begin, circumstances were now compelling us to halt. This state of things could be tolerated no longer. Either the care of the insane must be abandoned, or we must conform with the improved views and methods of the day.

But the reception and care of lunatics were among the very objects of the foundation of the Hospital. The first memorial to the Provincial Assembly refers, in its beginning sentence, to the increasing number of lunatics, as one of the great wants calling for relief. All the legislative grants, all the individual contributions and legacies, were made with the understanding that they were to be appropriated in part to this class of patients. In justice, they could not be abandoned. It was among the highest obligations of the Institution to provide for their proper care and treatment. An extension, then, of the existing accommodations was an imperative duty, I might almost say a necessity. But how, and to what extent was this to be effected?

Were we to be content with some enlargement of the means already in operation, with some patching of a system which had been outgrown, some repairs of an old edifice the very foundations of which were insecure? This would have been a very short-sighted policy—a very selfish policy—shifting from our own shoulders to those of our successors the burthen that properly belonged to us. No! The true plan, the most efficient, in the end even the cheapest plan, was to begin anew; to desert the old grounds and the old building as insufficient, and as wanted too for other purposes; to adopt the good American system of migration when overcrowded; and to seek a new site and new circumstances corresponding with the magnitude and importance of the object.

But how was this to be accomplished? Whence were the funds to be obtained? The productive capital of the Hospital could not be touched. The income from this source was sacred. It did not belong to the "Contributors to the Pennsylvania Hospital;" it belonged under solemn pledges to the sick and destitute poor. remained then but one alternative—an appeal to the public, or the sale of the beautiful but unproductive lots around the Hospital. The former, it was well known, would, under the circumstances and to the extent desirable, be unavailing. The answer to every hint of such a recourse was-you are rich; you are overburthened with unproductive real estate; make use of your own means, and then if necessary apply to us. It is true that many regretted the loss of those grassy squares; hoped that they might be reserved as breathing places for the crowded city; deprecated even the effect of their loss upon the probable health of the inmates of the Hospital; but they gave no money; they made no offers; they left the Hospital to its own resources. The sale of the grounds then became imperative. The Hospital had bought them with its own money, and had a full right to dispose of them.

The Contributors at different meetings were consulted upon this important business. At their meeting in May, 1831, they decided that a separate Asylum for the Insane was expedient, and instructed the Managers to propose a suitable site at a future meeting. In May, 1832, and subsequently in 1835, they gave authority to sell the vacant grounds east, west, and south-west of the Hospital, in order to raise money for the new buildings.

These lots had been purchased originally for about nine thousand dollars;* they were sold as authorized by the contributors; and their proceeds before they were expended upon the New Asylum for the Insane, amounted, principal and interest included, to three hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. They had never yielded an income to the Hospital. In a pecuniary point of view, therefore, this was a pure gain. It was an exchange of unproductive property for the noble establishment which has arisen upon the other side of the Schuylkill, and which has restored to Philadelphia the proud rank she had nearly lost in this great onward movement of humanity.

The question of a site for this new branch of the Hospital was one of great importance. Happily it was settled in favour of the country. I presume that at present there are scarcely two opinions upon the subject. If any one should still entertain a doubt, let him visit the beautiful spot now occupied by the insane under the charge of this Institution, and he will return with all his doubts removed.

It is hardly necessary for me to say, that the site selected was a farm extending from the Haverford to the West-chester Road, about two miles west of the city, containing somewhat more than 100 acres.

The position was, I think, happily selected in reference to healthfulness, convenience, and future availability. A century hence, it is probable that our growing town will have reached these suburban grounds; and that their increased value at that time will enable the Institution to extend its beneficence in a degree proportionate to the inevitably increasing demands upon it.

The corner stone of "the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane," as this establishment is properly styled, was laid June 22d, 1836; and the house was opened for the reception of patients upon the first day of the year 1841. The whole cost of it was sustained without any encroachment upon the productive capital; though the fact, that the profits accruing from the board of insane patients had added very considerably to that capital, might have furnished a plausible excuse for the appropriation of a portion of it, had such appropriation been necessary, to the completion of the new establishment.

A visit to the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane will amply repay any one who either loves the beauties of nature, or the still greater beauties of beneficence in orderly, efficient, and extensive action. Around the house are pleasure grounds, of more than 40 acres in extent, of finely diversified surface, adorned with grass, shrubbery and trees, with a small wood enclosed, and from various points commanding agreeable rural views. Neat isolated buildings are seen here and there, intended for the amusement or employment of the inmates, or for other purposes connected with their well-being. midst arises a noble edifice, imposing by its magnitude. striking by its architectural character, arranged internally with every attention to healthfulness and comfort, where everything is exquisitely clean, everything in order, and a refreshing atmosphere of kindliness, cheerfulness, and all the gentler virtues seems to breathe peacefully through hall, saloon, and chamber. about the grounds, in the different apartments of the main building, or in the out-houses, you encounter persons walking, conversing, reading, or variously occupied, neatly and often handsomely dressed, to whom as you pass you receive an introduction as in ordinary social life; and you find yourself not unfrequently quite at a loss to determine whether the persons met with are really the insane, or whether they may not be visitors or officials in the establishment. From this scene of comfort, of amending health, of cheering hopefulness, your minds wander back to the days of cells, prisons, chains, and the lash; when the eye was offended with rags and filth, the ear wounded by yells, screams, and imprecations, and the heart pained by the images of despair around it; and you thank Heaven that you have been permitted to live in these times; you bless the hearts, the heads, and the hands which suggested, conceived, and executed all this glorious work of beneficence; and you feel your own hearts swelling with a consciousness of the increased elevation and dignity of human nature itself. Surely no outlay of money is to be regretted which has led to such results.

One of the important consequences of a transfer of the insane from the old Hospital to the new, was an increase of space in the former for the accommodation of ordinary medical and surgical patients. But the building was old and required much repair; and, besides, a large portion of it, having been originally arranged for the insane, was not adapted to ordinary purposes. A thorough repair, and to a certain extent reconstruction of the Hospital in the city, became consequently necessary; and the question now came up for determination how this was to be accomplished. The Board were equally unwilling as before to encroach on the productive capital; one large lot, that namely, lying South of the Hospital, remained to them; and an effort to obtain subscriptions for the alteration of the west wing, may be said to have failed before the fact that such a lot existed, as it produced only three thousand dollars, while thirty or forty thousand were requisite. It remained only that the square on Pine street should follow the fortune of the others, and exchange its beautiful grassy covering for one of bricks and mortar. The alterations were The west wing was completely repaired, commenced. and remodeled so as to adapt it for ordinary patients; and may boast at present among its wards two of the neatest anywhere existing. I have never seen wards equal to them, in this respect, in any Hospital either of this country or Europe. The east wing and the centre are at this very time undergoing similar alteration; and it is probable that, before the end of the first year of the second century of our existence as a corporate body, we shall be possessed of an edifice in perfect repair, as substantial as if new, every way fitted for the use of the Institution, and likely to last yet another hundred years.

I have now brought the history of the Hospital to a Had time permitted I could have dwelt with great satisfaction on its relations with the prominent individuals who have in various ways been connected with it since the Revolution, and have contributed to elevate it to its present prosperous condition. Especially should I have been gratified, from feelings of professional pride and sympathy, to call to your recollection those great medical names which have honoured alike this Institution, our city, and our whole country. But I forbear; and hasten to the end of this address, already I fear protracted somewhat beyond your patience. It yet remains to offer you a very general view of the present condition. resources, and operations of the establishment; and to call your attention briefly to two or three points, in which justice requires that certain misapprehensions in relation to it should be corrected.

The Chartered Body consists of all who have paid £10 to the Institution. These are called Contributors. They elect the Managers and a Treasurer; and to their authority recourse is had when any important undertaking or change of regulations is contemplated.

The Board of Managers consists of twelve contributors, who, with the Treasurer, are chosen annually on the first Monday in May, and serve without compensation. They have, under the Contributors, the whole control of the concerns of the Hospital, and, with the single exception of the Treasurer, appoint all the officers. They also have the power to fill vacancies in their own numbers, occurring in the interval between the annual meetings in May.

There are two great branches of the Institution; the Hospital in the city, intended for the reception of medical, surgical, and obstetrical patients, and the Hospital for the Insane, situated in the country.

The domestic economy of each of these establishments is under the superintendence of a Steward and Matron.

In the city Hospital, the patients are under the care of a Board of Medical officers, consisting of three physicians, three surgeons, and two obstetricians, all contributors, who serve without compensation. They divide the year between them; but in such a manner that one of the physicians and one of the surgeons visit the Hospital daily.

The visiting physicians and surgeons are aided by three resident physicians, graduates in medicine, who are appointed for eighteen months, live in the house, and receive their board for their services.

A resident apothecary, with a salary, superintends the preparation and dispensing of medicines.

Attached to this branch of the Institution is a splendid medical library, containing more than 9000 volumes, many of them of great value, which, under certain regulations, are in constant use by students of medicine and physicians. A Librarian, with a salary, resides in the house, has charge of the books, and at the same time serves as clerk to the Board of Managers.

The Hospital for the Insane is under the direct management, in all that concerns the medical, moral, and physical condition of the patients, of one Physician, who receives a salary, and devotes his whole time to the establishment. The present very efficient occupant of that office has filled it from the foundation of this department of the Hospital.

He is aided by a subordinate resident physician, who also receives a salary.

Such is the machinery of the Institution. The resources by which it is kept in operation consist of an invested productive capital, which by contributions, legacies, &c., has been gradually increased to three hundred and seventy thousand dollars, yielding an income of about twenty thousand dollars. At the present time, the department for the Insane very nearly supports itself out of the receipts from the pay-patients; the interest of the money expended in purchasing the grounds and erecting the buildings being left out of consideration.

And now let us glance at the results of the operations of the Hospital. In the hundred years which have elapsed since its foundation, it has received and treated 51,116 patients, of whom 29,863 were upon the poor list.

Since the separation of the two branches, in 1841, 13,829 have been admitted to the City Hospital, of whom 9800 were poor; and 1878 into the Hospital for the Insane, of whom 466 were poor.

In the year ending in May, 1851, the last year of the century, the number received into the City Hospital was 1935, of whon 1416 were on the charity list; and the average population of the house was 158, with 120 poor. In the Hospital for the Insane, 206 were admitted during the year, 53 of them poor; and the average population of the house has been 216.*

* The following statistics in relation to the insane who have been treated in the Pennsylvania Hospital, extracted from the last report of Dr. Thomas S. Kirkbride, the very efficient medical superintendent of the department for the insane, will serve to complete the view here given of the operations of the Institution.

From the foundation of the Hospital in 1751, to the date of the report, January 1st, 1851, 6062 insane patients had been admitted and treated, of whom 1000 were on the charity list. In the ten years which had elapsed from the opening of the present buildings, 1806 patients were received, of whom 448 were indigent Pennsylvanians, who were supported at the cost of $67,410 46 to the income of the Hospital, and most of whom would have remained without treatment but for this charitable provision. In addition to this number received without any charge, 666 were admitted at rates below the actual cost of their support; and those paying most largely had accommodations and advantages not procurable in private families, even at a much greater cost.

When the new house was first opened, 94 patients were received from the City Hospital. This number was gradually increased, till at one time in the year 1850, 235 were under care; and the average number in the last year was 219, nearly filling the house at all times, and often crowding it to its utmost capacity.

In judging of the efficiency of the treatment of the insane by the statistical results, it is necessary to take into consideration the fact, that all classes of insane persons are received into the Institution, without reference to the duration or curability of the disease. It is obvious that a much smaller proportion of these will be restored to health than of patients admitted while the disease is still curable. This statement, however, refers only to the patients who pay more or less for their support. The number of charity patients allowed to be in the house at one time has been fixed at 40, which is as many as the funds will allow. In relation to these the wise regulation has been adopted, to admit only recent

To complete this view of the beneficial operations of the Institution, it remains only to say that three hundred medical students have annually, for several years, been in attendance upon the practice of the house, and upon the clinical lectures delivered there, yielding a yearly revenue of three thousand dollars, and enjoying in their turn opportunities for improvement, the benefits of which to themselves and the several communities in which they may practise their profession, are quite incalculable.

The whole expense of supporting the Institution, from its foundation, not including the cost of the buildings, has been somewhat over one million and a half of and curable cases, and to retain them only for a limited period, or so long as there may be a reasonable prospect of benefit. By such a plan it is very obvious that incomparably more good is effected than if the number were allowed to be filled by incurable patients, who would remain an indefinite length of time in the Hospital, each one probably excluding many who might be restored to health.

Of the 1806 patients received during the ten years from January 1st, 1841, to the date of the report, 213 remained, and 1593 had died or been discharged. Of the latter number the deaths were 176, the discharges 1417. Of the persons discharged, 843 were cured, 137 much improved, 234 improved, and only 203 stationary. Thus it appears that, upon an average of all the admissions, about 53 per cent. are perfectly restored, 61 per cent. either restored to health or greatly improved, and 76 per cent. either cured or in some degree improved; which must be allowed to be a large proportion, when the character of the admissions is considered, and strongly evincive of the favourable operation of the lenient mode of treatment adopted in the house. It is probable that, were recent cases only admitted, considerably more even than the largest per centage mentioned would end in perfect recovery; a strong argument in favour of an early resort to Hospitals in cases of insanity.

dollars; and the cost of each patient, on the average, has been thirty dollars; but it must be recollected that many chronic patients, especially of the insane, were in the house for months and years, and some for many years; and that the comparatively large expenditures on some of the wealthy insane who could afford to pay, have contributed considerably to swell the general average.

There is reason to believe that misapprehensions have prevailed to a greater or less extent in the community in relation to our Institution, which have in some degree affected its popularity. Upon these I would say a few words before we part.

In the first place, we not unfrequently hear it referred to as the Quaker Hospital; and a disposition has probably existed, in some degree, to leave the burthen of its support to those who were supposed to enjoy the honour and advantages of controlling it. Now, if the fact that members of the Society of Friends have from its very embryo state cherished and sustained it, and have at all times freely contributed money and personal service towards its maintenance, entitles it to be considered as the Quaker Hospital, we must with all humility submit to the sectarian designation; but that it is now or ever has been governed exclusively by Friends; that the peculiar views of this religious sect have ever been especially inculcated or its interests consulted; that members of that Society have beyond their fair share reaped any of the honours and emoluments connected with it, is not true. In looking over the minutes of the Board of Managers for a century, I do not remember once to have met with a reference to the Society of Among the poor admitted to its charity from the foundation to the present time, unless perhaps a few of the insane, I doubt whether there has been a single Quaker. Of the Physicians and Surgeons, and all other professional officers, by far the larger proportion has belonged to other sects; and, if a considerable number of the Managers have always been chosen from among the Friends, this has been owing to the confidence reposed in them by the contributors, who are of all sects, and all shades of religious sentiment. The truth is, that the Institution is quite free from sectarian bias. It is open indiscriminately to all. Any one, whatever may be his religious attachments, may become a contributor; the contributors may elect whom they please as Managers; the Managers are bound, in their selection of officers, to be guided by qualification and not by profession of faith; and every patient in the Hospital may have recourse to the religious counsel or ministration of the clergyman of his own choice. It is to be hoped, therefore, if aid has ever been withheld from the Institution upon this ground, that the feeling may operate no longer; and that the willingness to yield it support may be as diffusive as its own charity.

Another injurious impression is that the Hospital is indisposed to receive the poor; that patients of this class find difficulty in gaining admission; that all chronic cases of the kind are excluded; and that, in fine, it is a great boarding house, managed with the view of making profit out of the sick rather than to assist the destitute. Nothing can be more groundless than this impression.

The fact simply is, that the whole revenue from all sources is directly or indirectly applied to the support of the sick poor. It is well known that all recent accidents, if brought to the door within twenty-four hours from their occurrence, are admitted without question. All cases of disease, whether acute or chronic, are received, if it appears to the physician that they are susceptible of relief. The Institution is not an asylum for the support of the destitute, but an Hospital for their cure when diseased. Patients who are altogether beyond the reach of treatment are not admitted, because they would exclude others who might be benefitted, and thus greatly narrow the bounds of useful action. The only restraints upon admission are those rendered necessary by the limited pecuniary means of the Hos-The reception of pay-patients is certainly in no way injurious. On the contrary, it is an extension of the charity. They are charged little more than is expended on them; and this little, whatever it may be, goes to increase the ability of the Hospital to receive the poor. The pay-patient is thus better accommodated than he would be at an equal cost in a private house; and at the same time is contributing to the support of others who are able to pay nothing. The whole operation of the Institution is beneficent.

There is yet one other point to which I would call the attention of the audience. It is said that the Hospital is rich; that it needs no further aid in the extension of its charity. This is a grievous error, and one calculated to do much evil if uncorrected. Let me state the case as plainly as possible. The capital of the Institution is a sacred fund, which cannot be encroached on without a virtual violation of the charter: without at least a violation of good faith towards those from whom that fund was derived; without a robbery of the future for the benefit of the present. It is only the income which can be justly expended. Well! that income is expended; all of it; and it is expended exclusively upon poor patients. Of these it supports about one hundred and twenty, exclusive of the insane; and it can support no more. Much unoccupied space has been gained in the Hospital buildings by the removal of the insane; and still more will have been gained when the alterations now in progress shall be completed. There is or will be room for one hundred and fifty additional charity beds. Now is it not a duty to fill this empty space; to prevent so great a waste? The expense of building has been incurred; the necessary interior organization has been effected; additional patients will cost only their food and medicine. It is a duty to supply this void, which is hungering and thirsting for the gifts of charity. But to whom does this duty belong? To those, certainly, who can afford to give. I would press this matter on the consciences of all who hear me. is a mode in which bounty can be most efficiently bestowed; the greatest amount of good produced at the least possible expense. I do not ask for immediate con-But let the fact rest in your remembrance. its claims to your conscience; and, whether disposed to give at once of your superfluity, or to leave memorials of a beneficent spirit behind you, do not forget the want that is here crying out for relief.

In thus urging the claims of this Institution, I would not be understood as in the least degree disparaging those of others whether in existence or in prospect. that there is a disposition abroad for the establishment of other Hospitals; and there is room for more. pily it is one of the glorious qualities of benevolence that it expands the heart into which it is once admitted. The glow of satisfaction which follows a good deed prompts to its repetition. Most happily, too, the warmth of one bosom spreads a sympathetic warmth to others. While advocating, therefore, the interests of our Hospital, I feel that I am advocating also those of charity in general; and that, if these remarks are fortunate enough to strike one spark into the bosom of benevolence, it may kindle a flame, which, by its genial warmth, may contribute to the bursting forth of the buds of other charities into flower and fruit.

Finally, permit me to say; I do not ask your countenance for the Pennsylvania Hospital upon any mere secular grounds; I do not call upon your pride as citizens in an Institution which has long been the boast of our town and State; I do not appeal to the associations which the very name must call up with the great and revered who have in various ways been connected with it; I do not ask for the gratitude which the inestimable services of a century to this community might seem to claim; I simply state that it affords you at this moment the opportunity of doing more good in proportion to the cost than can perhaps be done in any other way; that the streams of your charity, if directed towards this field of usefulness, will not be wasted through the poverty of the soil, but will find it well prepared to yield richly under their vivifying influence.

APPENDIX I.

CHARTER

PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL.

ANNO VIGESIMO QUARTO.
GEORGII II. REGIS.

At a general Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania, begun and holden at Philadelphia, the fourteenth day of October, Anno Domini, 1750, and from thence continued by adjournments to the sixth day of May, 1751.

An ACT to encourage the establishing of an Hospital for the relief of the sick poor of this Province, and for the reception and care of lunaticks.

"Whereas the saving and restoring useful Preamble. and laborious members to a community, is a work of publick service, and the relief of the sick poor is not only an act of humanity but a religious duty; and whereas there are frequently, in many parts of this province, poor distempered persons, who languish long in pain and misery under various disorders of body and mind, and being scattered abroad in different and very distant habitations cannot have the benefit of regular advice, attendance, lodging, diet, and medicines, but at a great expense, and, therefore often suffer for want thereof; which inconveniency might be happily removed, by collecting the patients into one common Provincial Hospital, properly disposed and appointed, where they may be comfortably subsisted, and their health taken care of at a small charge, and by the blessing of God on the endeavours of skilful physicians and surgeons, their diseases may be cured and removed. And whereas it is represented to this Assembly, that there is a charitable disposition in divers inhabitants of this province to contribute largely towards so good a work, if such contributors might be incorporated with proper powers and privileges for carrying on and completing the same, and some part of the publick money given and appropriated to the providing a suitable building for the purposes aforesaid.

"Therefore, for the encouragement of so useful, pious, and charitable a design, we pray that it may be enacted, And be it enacted, by the honourable James Hamilton, Esquire, Lieutenant-Governor under the honourable Thomas Penn, and Richard Penn, Esquires, true and absolute proprietaries of the province of Pennsylvania, and counties of New-Castle, Kent

ABSTRACT OF THE RULES OF THE HOSPITAL NOW IN FORCE.

The Contributors meet regularly every year, on the first Monday in May, and elect a Board of Managers and a Treasurer. They also meet at other times when called together by the Managers, upon a notice of at least ten days.

The Managers meet upon the last Monday of every month, and at such other times as they may deem necessary to transact the business of the Institution.

At the first meeting after their election, they choose by ballot the medical and other officers of the Hospital.

A committee of two of the Board, called the ATTENDING MANAGERS, is appointed monthly, whose business is to keep a constant supervision over the concerns of the Institution. This committee attends at the Hospital in the city twice every week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, at 10 o'clock A. M., and at the Hospital for the Insane once a week, on Saturday afternoon.

The TREASURER, after his election, gives sufficient security for the due performance of his office, and once in three months, or oftener if required, renders his accounts to the Managers.

Of the Officers of the Hospital in the City.

The Physicians, Surgeons, and Obstetricians, are chosen from contributors to the Hospital, and must be at least thirty years of age.

They constitute a Medical Board, which has the power to arrange the periods and succession of attendance at the Hospital, under general regulations made by the managers.

One Physician, one Surgeon, and one Obstetrician are on duty at the same time, the first two serving for four months, the last for six months continuously in the same year. They attend at the Hospital twice a week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, from 10 to 12 o'clock in the morning. The attending Physician and Surgeon also visit the Hospital daily, at such hour as they may deem most convenient. Their duties are to admit patients, to direct their treatment, and to regulate their respective wards in all that concerns the well-being of the sick. Each one of them is entitled to the admission of eight of his private pupils to attend the practice of the house.

Regular clinical instruction is given by them, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, to the students admitted to the Hospital. They also have the privilege of giving clinical instruction to a class of private pupils, upon the other days of the week, for which they may receive from the pupils such compensation as they may deem proper. Their attendance upon the patients, and clinical instruction to the general class of students on Wednesdays and Saturdays are gratuitous.

The RESIDENT PHYSICIANS are graduates in medicine, reside in the house, and are severally elected for eighteen months. They have charge of the patients under the direction of the attending Physician and Surgeon, carry their prescriptions into effect, and execute the general medical rules of the house. They are never allowed to be all absent from the Hospital at the same time.

The STEWARD has the general care of the buildings and grounds, makes purchases for the house, keeps an account of receipts and expenditures, and engages the nurses, domestics, &c., whom he has the power to discharge.

The Matron attends to the general cleanliness and order of the house, and to the diet of the patients under the direction of the medical attendants, has a general control over the domestics, and jointly with the steward takes care that the nurses perform their duties properly.

The APOTHECARY resides in the house, from which he never absents himself without notice. His duty is to procure and prepare medicines, to put up prescriptions, and to keep his shop in proper order.

The CLERK AND LIBRARIAN performs such duties as usually appertain to the office of clerk, and also takes charge of the library, giving out the books to those who may have the privilege to take them, and seeing that they are duly returned.

All cases of surgical injury are received PATIENTS. at all times gratuitously into the house, when brought within twenty-four hours after the occurrence of the accident, and provided that the injury has been received within the limits of the State of Pennsylvania. these, 80 patients are admitted on the charity list, 40 in the medical wards, 31 in the surgical, and 9 in the obstetrical. None are admitted with contagious diseases, and none whose cases are deemed hopelessly irremediable. After the free beds are filled, any patient, if not affected with contagious disease, may be admitted for a moderate compensation. No unmarried woman is received into the lying-in ward. The charity patients are retained, after admission, until recovery or death, or so long as any hope remains of doing them good.

Patients are not permitted to smoke in the wards, nor to play at any game of chance on the premises, nor to use any alcoholic drinks unless by medical prescription, nor are they or their friends allowed to introduce liquor or provisions of any kind from without.

No patient is allowed to leave the Hospital, while under treatment, unless by the special permission of the physician and attending managers.

If any patient desire to see a Minister of the Gospel, and the physician do not deem it improper, in reference to the state of his disease, that he should do so, the steward gives notice to the person whose attendance is requested; but, except in such cases, religious exercises are not conducted in the wards.

VISITORS to the patients and domestics are admitted at stated hours and days in the week (Mondays and Thursdays, from 3 P. M. to sunset); but except on these occasions, permission must be obtained from a manager; and those admitted are not allowed to ramble over the house and grounds.

Hospital for the Insane.

The Physician is the official head of this department; and, under the Board of Managers, has the general superintendence and control of all the persons employed. He resides on the premises, and devotes his whole time to the Institution. He has the whole direction of the medical, moral, and dietetic treatment of the patients. It is his duty to report annually to the Board the operations of the Hospital, and their results.

The Assistant Physician resides in the Hospital, and, under the direction of the Physician, devotes his whole time to its service. He prepares the medicines and superintends their administration; keeps records of the cases; remains as much as possible with the patients, contributing to their comfort and welfare; and keeps a watchful oversight of the attendants, so as to prevent or report neglect or improper conduct. He cannot absent himself from the Hospital without the knowledge and consent of the Physician.

The duties of the STEWARD and MATRON are essentially the same as those of the similar officers of the Hospital in the city.

Patients are admitted upon a certificate of insanity signed by a respectable graduate in medicine, after a written application from some near relative or friend. Idiots and patients with the delirium of drunkards are not received.

Forty indigent patients are admitted on the charity list. The conditions are that their cases shall offer a fair chance of cure, and that security be given by some responsible resident of the City or County of Philadelphia for their clothing while in the house, and their removal when discharged. They are admitted by the Attending Managers, for a period not exceeding six months; but, if at the expiration of that time, a reasonable expectation of cure remains, their stay may be protracted.

Patients who are able to pay are admitted by any one of the Managers. The rate of board is regulated by the pecuniary means of the patients, and the kind of accommodation required. The lowest rate for residents of Pennsylvania is $3 50 a week, and for others $5 00. None are admitted for a shorter time than three months, for which period the board is required in advance; and, if the patient is removed within that period, without the advice and consent of the Physician, none of the money is returned. When special attendance is required, they are to be provided by the Physician of the Hospital, and the expense charged to the patient. Security is in all cases required from some responsible resident of the City or County of Philadelphia for the payment of the board and other expenses.

Visitors are admitted from 10 A. M. to sunset, on all days of the week except Sundays; but on the afternoon of Saturdays, they are admitted only upon special business with the Attending Managers, or one of the officers of the house. They are not allowed to enter the wards occupied by the patients, without permission from the Physician, or in his absence from the Assistant Physician; and must be accompanied in their visits by one of these officers or by the Steward or Matron. It is expressly prohibited to furnish the inmates of the Hospital with tobacco in any form, and to receive or deliver any letter, parcel, or package, without the approval of the Physician.

Of the Library.

The following persons are allowed to take books out of the library: 1. All who are entitled to attend the practice of the Hospital, so long as this right continues; 2. All who have paid twenty-five dollars in one sum for the privilege, and to these it belongs for life; 3. The Managers, Treasurer, and Physicians of the Hospital, during their service, and all of these for life who have served the Institution five years; and 4. All officers of the Institution whom the Library Committee may direct. The right is in no case transferable.

They who have only a temporary right to attend the Hospital are required to deposit ten dollars as security, which is afterwards returned. Of those having a permanent right this deposit is not required. But every one having the privilege of using the library must, before he receives a book, sign a conditional obligation for a sum specified by the Library Committee, as security for his observance of the rules of the library, and for the value of such books as may be lost or injured by him.

More than two books cannot be taken out at once without permission from the Library Committee; and none can be kept longer than four weeks without being returned. Fines are to be paid for violations of these rules; and compensation for all injuries and losses, together with a fine if required. The loss of one book in a set is considered as the loss of the whole. If compliance with the rules is refused, or gross misconduct committed, the Managers may declare the right of the offender forfeited.

The Library Committee may grant the use of the books to scientific men for a limited period, or on special occasions; but this privilege is not to be extended to more than six persons at the same time.

Certain specified works of great value, or peculiarly liable to injury, are not permitted to leave the library without a written order from a member of the Library Committee; but facilities are given for their examination at the Hospital.

The books are given out by the Librarian, every day (except Sunday) from 11½ to 12½ o'clock.

THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE PENN FAMILY.

Thomas and Richard Penn, sons of the distinguished founder of Pennsylvania, contributed (1762 to 1775) nearly $1500* to the purposes of this charity; and, further, by patent dated November 10, 1767, gave, to complete the Hospital square, a lot of ground, extending on Spruce Street, from 8th to 9th Streets, 396 feet, and southwards a depth of 107 feet on 8th and 9th Streets respectively. They likewise gave to the Hospital, by patent dated in 1769, a lot on Spruce Street, extending west from 9th Street, 198 feet, and southwardly in depth 107 feet to other land of the Hospital. Being part of the lot on which Portico Square is now built.

The Institution is also indebted† to a grandson of Wm. Penn for the statue which ornaments the lawn in front of the Hospital.

THE LYING-IN CHARITY.

The fund on which this department of the Hospital was founded in the year 1807—the donation* of the First Troop of Philadelphia Cavalry—consisted of sixteen shares of the stock of the Bank of Pennsylvania; representing a capital of $6400, and yielding an average annual income of $456 50. More, however, than the whole of this fund, principal and interest, has been already expended upon the objects of the charity.

SINCE the establishment of the Hospital in 1752, there have been admitted and treated, 51,116, of whom 29,863 were charity patients, supported at the expense of the Institution.

Of these 51,116 patients—

In addition to those above enumerated, 15,258 persons were attended as out patients, and furnished with medicine at the expense of the Hospital. This was done during the years 1797 to 1817, when, in consequence of the establishment of institutions having this special object, the dispensary practice of the Hospital was discontinued.

^{*} This reduction in the average population of the Hospital was caused by the removal, in 1841, of more than 90 insane patients (mostly permanent boarders) to the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane.

PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

The Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane (situated in Philadelphia County about two miles west from the City) was opened for the reception of patients on the first day of the year 1841, since which time there have been admitted into it
